

NIRCA

National Insurance Repair Contractors Association

NIRCA FORMAL LAUNCH

Wednesday 26 September 2007

Chartered Institute of Building, Englemere, Ascot,
10am

2007 is being described as 'the flood year' but with erratic weather patterns becoming commonplace, every year could potentially become a 'flood year'. The National Insurance Repair Contractors Association looks at how the insurance industry is coping and the ongoing challenges it faces once the flood water has subsided. Is it a PR success or failure?

At the launch NIRCA will give its opinion on flood repairs, how long it should take to get homeowners back into their properties and whether the industry can sustain repeated flooding incidents. It will also look at the challenges, competencies and pricing levels and consider whether these differ in a surge situation. To get the contractors view on the way in which the industry needs to tackle flood situations and learn more about NIRCA complete the attached booking form and return ASAP.

Who should attend?

Contractors who are interested in joining a Trade Organisation that will seek to represent them at the highest level in the insurance industry, and who wish to network with other competent contractors on matters outside of normal commercial interests e.g. Health and Safety , Training, current and new legislation.

Insurers and Loss Adjustors – to gain access to competent contractors across the UK and have a chance to influence contractors thinking and approach to domestic and light commercial insurance works.

Others who are part of the supply chain and have an interest in engaging with competent contractors for example Loss assessors, Surveyors, Architects and Engineers.
